Halloween at Home

On a chilly and cloudy night Halloween, Keith and his sister Regina decided not to go trick-or-treating. Instead, they wanted to stay home and give out candy. Their mother had bought four bags of candy at Wal-Mart to give away to the trick-or-treaters.

"Let's dress up and scare the kids who come to our house for candy!" said Regina. She loved Halloween, especially when it was scary.

"Okay," Keith replied, "but I don't want to be too scary!" Keith liked Halloween to be funny.

"Well, I like it and I think it's fun!" Keith squeaked his pretend clown nose and put on large, clown shoes.

Regina and Keith waited by their front door for kids to come. A whole hour had passed and no trick-or-treaters came to the door. All night long Regina and Keith waited and waited and waited.

"Wow I guess we should have gone trick-or-treating, after all." Regina told her brother as she took off her witch's hat.

"Well, not really – now we have all this candy to ourselves!" Keith was happy, and Regina laughed!
