New Year's Resolution

By Kelly Hashway

Erica scribbled her third New Year's resolution down on her homework sheet and smiled. "Done!"

"Really? That was quick," her mother said.
"Can I hear what your resolution is?"

"You know the point of a resolution is to change something in your life for the better and to stick with it. Can you honestly see yourself sticking to these things?"

Erica looked over the list again. "Maybe," she said with a shrug.

Her mom raised an eyebrow at her.

"Well, maybe not all of them," Erica said. "I can try my best in math but that doesn't mean I'll get an A."

"Then maybe you should find a resolution that is achievable and something you can benefit from."

"Like what?"

"You'll come up with something," her mom said, as she started to fix dinner.

Erica sat at the table, staring at her list of resolutions. She really wanted to try to make these things happen. It would be nice to have more time in the evenings, so doing her homework after school and not leaving her chores un-

Plan! That was the answer.

"Mom!" Erica jumped up from the table.

"What is it?" her mother asked.

"I've got it. In order to do all these things, I need to stick to a schedule. So my New Year's resolution should be to schedule my time after school so I can do my homework, get my chores done
