I grow on vines on the ground.

My name is a compound word. That means two small words make up my long name.

You eat me. I am very good for you. I give you vitamin C and other good things.

People like to eat me on hot summer days because I have a lot of water in me.
I am a watermelon.

What color am I?
I am green on the outside. I am usually a red-pink color on the inside. My inside can also be orange, yellow, or white.

Be careful if you pick me up. I am rather heavy and, if you drop me, I will break open. Inside, I am filled with many small seeds.
What Am I?

By Linda Andersen

I grow on vines on the ground.

My name is a compound word. That means two small words make up my long name.

You eat me. I am very good for you. I give you vitamin C and other good things. I have a lot of water.

What color am I? I am green on the outside. I am usually a red-pink color on the inside. My inside can also be orange, yellow, or white.

Be careful if you pick me up. I am rather heavy and, if you drop me, I will break open. Inside, I am filled with many small seeds.

What am I?
I grow on vines on the ground.

My name is a compound word. That means two small words make up my long name.

You eat me. I am very good for you. I give you vitamin C and other good things. I have a lot of water in me.

What color am I? I am green on the outside. I am usually a red-pink color on the inside. My inside can also be orange, yellow, or white.

Be careful if you pick me up. I am rather heavy and, if you drop me, I will break open. Inside, I am filled with many small seeds.

What am I?

Answer: I am a watermelon.