

Who am I?

Monday's
Clue

Fifty-six men signed the Declaration of Independence. I was one of them. I also helped write this famous document that announced that the thirteen states were no longer part of the British Empire.

Who am I?

Tuesday's
Clue

I had many interests. I could speak well in five languages and was able to read in two more languages. I liked to write. I penned about sixteen thousand letters in my life.

D-4

PREVIEW

Please log in or register to download the printable version of this worksheet.

Wh

Monday's Clue

Here are three quotes attributed to me:

"Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today."

"When angry count to ten before you speak. If very angry, count to one hundred."

"Whenever you do a thing, act as if all the world were watching."

D-4

D-4

Who am I?

Friday's
Clue

If you have not yet guessed who I am, perhaps my last clue will help – I was the third president of the United States.

Who am I?

Bonus
Clue

I worked as a lawyer. I served as governor of Virginia, a U.S. minister to France, secretary of state under George Washington, and vice-president under John Adams. (Unfortunately, John Adams and I did not get along!)

D-4

PREVIEW

Please log in or register to download the printable version of this worksheet.

Who am I?

Thomas Jefferson

D-4

Who am I?

I know it!

Name: _____

Date: _____

Answer: _____

Who am I?

I know it!

Name: _____

Date: _____

Answer: _____

Who am I?

I know it!

Name: _____

Date: _____

Answer: _____

Who am I?

I know it!

Name: _____

Date: _____

Answer: _____

~ PREVIEW ~

Please log in or register to download the printable version of this worksheet.

Who am I?

I know it!

Name: _____

Date: _____

Answer: _____

Who am I?

I know it!

Name: _____

Date: _____

Answer: _____

Who am I?

I know it!

Name: _____

Date: _____

Answer: _____

Who am I?

I know it!

Name: _____

Date: _____

Answer: _____

Who Am I?

By Linda Billberg Andersen

Fifty-six men signed the Declaration of Independence. I was one of them. I also helped write this famous document that announced that the thirteen states were no longer part of the British Empire.

Congress approved the wording of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776. I died exactly fifty years later, on July 4, 1826.

I had many interests. I could speak well in five languages and was able to read in two more languages. I was a lawyer, a politician, and a philosopher. I wrote many things that are still read today.

~ PREVIEW ~

Please log in or register to download the printable version of this worksheet.

“Wher

e. Many

dred.”

“Whenever you do a thing, act as if all the world were watching.”

I accomplished many things in my life and held a number of important jobs. I helped establish the University of Virginia. I sold my large collection of books to congress and it became the start of the present Library of Congress.

I worked as a lawyer. I served as governor of Virginia, a U.S. minister to France, secretary of state under George Washington, and vice-president under John Adams. (Unfortunately, John Adams and I did not get along!)

If you have not yet guessed who I am, perhaps my last clue will help – I was the third president of the United States.

Who am I?

Who Am I?

By Linda Billberg Andersen

Fifty-six men signed the Declaration of Independence. I was one of them. I also helped write this famous document that announced that the thirteen states were no longer part of the British Empire.

Congress approved the wording of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776. I died exactly fifty years later, on July 4, 1826.

I had many interests. I could speak well in five languages and was able to read in two more languages. I liked to write. I penned about sixteen thousand letters in my life. Many things that

“Wher

~ PREVIEW ~

Please log in or register to download the printable version of this worksheet.

dred.”

I accomplished many things in my life and held a number of important jobs. I helped establish the University of Virginia. I sold my large collection of books to congress and it became the start of the present Library of Congress.

I worked as a lawyer. I served as governor of Virginia, a U.S. minister to France, secretary of state under George Washington, and vice-president under John Adams. (Unfortunately, John Adams and I did not get along!)

If you have not yet guessed who I am, perhaps my last clue will help – I was the third president of the United States.

Who am I?

Answer: I am Thomas Jefferson.