The words compliment and complement may sound similar, but they have very different meanings.

Compliment can be a verb meaning to give someone praise or admiration. It can also be a noun meaning an expression of praise or admiration.

examples: Victoria is always quick to compliment others.
          Grandma gave Fiona a compliment on her pretty purple dress.

Complement can be a verb meaning to complete something or bring it to fullness. Complement can also be a noun meaning a thing that completes something or brings it to perfection.

examples: Mr. and Mrs. Bohm complement each other very well.
          The sweet, flaky crust is the perfect complement to the tart, crisp apples in Oma’s pie.

Write the word compliment or complement in each blank to correctly complete the sentence.

1. Chelsea gave Emily a ____________ on her new pair of shoes.

6. The artist added some earthy green tones to _________________ the rich reds in his oil painting.

7. My neighbor came over to _________________ my blooming rose bushes.

8. Hiro’s bright, colorful clothing seems to _________________ his outgoing personality.

9. Thank you for the nice _________________!

10. Miles’ dad gave him a _________________ on his good report card.
The words compliment and complement may sound similar, but they have very different meanings.

Compliment can be a verb meaning to give someone praise or admiration. It can also be a noun meaning an expression of praise or admiration.

examples: Victoria is always quick to compliment others.
Grandma gave Fiona a compliment on her pretty purple dress.

Complement can be a verb meaning to complete something or bring it to fullness. Complement can also be a noun meaning a thing that completes something or brings it to perfection.

examples: Mr. and Mrs. Bohm complement each other very well.
The sweet, flaky crust is the perfect complement to the tart, crisp apples in Oma’s pie.

Write the word compliment or complement in each blank to correctly complete the sentence.

1. Chelsea gave Emily a compliment on her new pair of shoes.
2. The sweet and tangy flavors in the sauce complement each other.
3. Be quick to compliment and slow to criticize.
4. Kiera always finds ways to compliment her family and friends.
5. Khepri and Nijah may be different, but they complement one another.
6. The artist added some earthy green tones to complement the rich reds in his oil painting.
7. My neighbor came over to compliment my blooming rose bushes.
8. Hiro’s bright, colorful clothing seems to complement his outgoing personality.
9. Thank you for the nice compliment!
10. Miles’ dad gave him a compliment on his good report card.