“Look at the dolphins!” Jordan raced to the aquarium tank with his twin sister, Dani. He propped his elbows on the rim of the tank and leaned forward on his tip toes.

This was the closest he’d ever been to a dolphin. Sometimes when he and his family had gone ocean sailing, dolphins had chased their boat, but the dolphins had always been too far away and too fast to touch.

Jordan made a face at the fish in his tray. Ew, he thought. They were smelly and looked slimy and squishy. He studied the dolphins and wondered if they felt slimy too. When he heard laughter, he craned his neck past several people to watch Dani, who was waving one of her fish in the air.

A guide stopped beside Jordan. The guide said, “Hold your fish above the water and drop it in the dolphin’s mouth. That’s the best time to pet a dolphin.”
Jordan held his breath as he pinched a fish between his thumb and index finger. He dangled it over the water.

A dolphin swam up to him and opened its mouth. Jordan pulled his hand slightly back and paused. What if the dolphin swallowed his hand, too?

Jordan glanced at the guide, and then at Dani, who was already petting a dolphin. Jordan dropped the fish into the dolphin’s mouth and briefly touched its light gray back. It felt slippery and smooth. “Oh, cool!” he cried.

“Aah!” He laughed and wrung his t-shirt. Jordan quickly held out another fish and smiled as he pet another dolphin. Soon Jordan’s tray was empty. Dolphin after dolphin passed just barely out of reach. They were all traveling to Dani, who had a waiting line of dolphins.

“Hey, over here!” Jordan shouted to the dolphins. He reached his hand out over the salty water in the tank.

“Dolphins can’t hear you,” the guide said. “They hear on a higher pitch.”

Jordan whistled. A couple of dolphins swam by but didn’t stop. His shoulders slumped. Then he shrugged and ran to his sister. “Dani, that was so cool!”

“I know!” Dani grinned. She threw a fish into a dolphin’s mouth and rubbed its back. Dani picked up her last fish. “You want it?”

Jordan paused. “No, you do it.”

“Okay.” Dani tossed the fish to the next dolphin and pet it.

Then, Jordan wrapped his arm around Dani’s shoulder. They giggled and ran out of the park.
