Reese jumped up and cheered as he finally beat his new video game. "Yes! I did it!"

His mother came running into the room. "What's wrong?"

She looked at Reese and then at the video game. "I thought you were working on your English essay. It's due tomorrow."

"I'm going to right now. I had to finish the game first. I just knew I was going to beat it. I was in the zone." Reese couldn't stop smiling. He'd been playing this game all weekend, trying to beat the final level. And now he'd done it.

volume. He dodged the castle defenders and raced across the moat. He was going to do it again. Twice in one night! He could barely keep from yelling, but he didn't want his mom to come into the room and find him playing instead of writing his essay.

He won the game again and sighed. It felt good but not as good as the first time. "All right. Time to write my essay." He sat at his desk and looked at the clock. "Nine-thirty?"

Mom knocked on the door. "How's the essay coming along?"
Reese stared at his blank paper. Mom looked at the video game.

Reese had forgotten to turn it off.

“You were playing again, weren’t you?”

“Yeah.” Reese held up the small clock. “And now it’s time for bed and I haven’t written a word.”

Mom crossed her arms. “You’ve been so busy playing that game all
