If walnuts come from walnut trees,
And almonds come from almond trees,
Then how come acorns come from oaks?
Can anyone explain this, please?

A redwood tree’s not really red,
1. What is the main idea of the poem?
   a. Trees have appropriate names.
   b. Trees have names that are often difficult to pronounce.
   c. The names of trees aren’t always obvious.
   d. Most people don’t know the names of trees.

2. Write a heading for each of the two categories on the t-chart.

3. According to the poem, which tree is red?
   a. redwood tree
   b. red oak tree
   c. both of these
   d. neither of these

4. Line 7 reads:
   So, why’s the white birch aptly named?

   Define the underlined word. Use a dictionary if you need help.
1. What is the main idea of the poem?
   a. Trees have appropriate names.
   b. Trees have names that are often difficult to pronounce.
   c. The names of trees aren't always obvious.
   d. Most people don't know the names of trees.

2. Write a heading for each of the two categories on the t-chart.

3. According to the poem, which tree is red?
   a. redwood tree
   b. red oak tree
   c. both of these
   d. neither of these

4. Line 7 reads:
   So, why's the white birch aptly named?
   Define the underlined word. Use a dictionary if you need help.
   __________________________________________________________________________
   __________________________________________________________________________

   These Trees!
   By Liana Mahoney

   Aptly comes from the word apt, which means suitable or appropriate.