American Bald Eagle

by Mikki Sadil

Watching a Bald Eagle is an awesome sight! They are very large, graceful birds with wingspans from six to eight feet across, and bodies often as long as three feet. They can soar over 10,000 feet high, and they have such good eyesight they can spot a fish from a mile away. When they go after a fish in the water, they can be diving down at speeds up to 100 miles an hour! They glide just inches over the water until they snag the fish with their feet, and then fly off to eat it. They are very hardy birds and can live up to thirty years in the wild. The Bald Eagle is the only eagle that lives exclusively in the US, from Alaska to Mexico and from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic Coast.

signifies that America always wants peace, while the arrows signify that America is always prepared for war if it becomes necessary.

When the eagle was being considered for the national emblem, Benjamin Franklin wanted the turkey to be the emblem, instead. He said that the eagle was "of bad moral character because he steals fish from other birds." He lost his argument, which is probably a good thing. What would our Thanksgiving Dinner be if we couldn't have turkey?
