Trish watched as all her classmates were divided into two teams for today’s lesson on basketball. Mr. Truman had named Amber and Jesse the two team captains, and they were choosing their teammates by who were the best athletes. That meant Trish was left last.

“Trish, you’re with me,” Amber said, sounding disappointed.

Trish lowered her head and joined her team on the court. If only her classmates knew she was pretty good at basketball. Her older brother had taught her how to make a free throw, but Trish was sure no one in her class would give her a chance to show them.

Once everyone was in position, Mr. Truman blew his whistle to start the game. Jesse’s team was very aggressive. They covered all the players on Amber’s team, except for Trish. The girl who was supposed to cover Trish was blocking Amber from passing the ball.

Trish moved across the court and met Amber’s eyes. She reached her hands out to show Amber she was open. Amber turned and looked for someone else to throw the ball to, but everyone was covered.

Trish lowered her arms thinking Amber was going to throw the ball away before she gave Trish a chance. But Amber passed the ball, bouncing it under the arms of the two girls blocking her. Trish caught the ball and stared at it, still in shock that Amber had passed it to her.

“Shoot!” Amber yelled.

Trish squared her feet and lined up her shot. She threw the ball and watched as it bounced off the backboard and fell through the net. Trish’s teammates cheered.

“Great shot!” Amber said, walking over to Trish.

“Thanks,” Trish said. “My brother taught me how to play. We shoot baskets almost every night.”

“You should come out and play with our the team,” Amber said. “My friends and I play in a league at the park every Saturday.”

Trish thought about that. She thought playing basketball with the other girls would be fun. And, if she joined the basketball team, maybe she wouldn’t be picked last in gym anymore.

“I think I will,” Trish said with a smile.
