

Name: _____

Writing Similes

Similes compare two things that are not normally alike using a word such as like, as, or than. Similes can make writing more descriptive or interesting. They can also give writing more personality.

example: Cole loudly rushed into the room.

↓
Cole came into the room
like a freight train.

Rewrite each sentence to include an appropriate simile.

1. Siobhan's hair is long and red.

Preview

Please log in to download
the printable version of this worksheet.

4. Zachary entered the kitchen very sneakily.

5. The students were shouting loudly.

6. Something in the classroom smelled really bad.

7. It is very cold outside right now.

ANSWER KEY

Writing Similes

Similes compare two things that are not normally alike using a word such as like, as, or than. Similes can make writing more descriptive or interesting. They can also give writing more personality.

example: Cole loudly rushed into the room.

↓
Cole came into the room
like a freight train.

Answers will vary. Examples are given.

Preview

Please log in to download
the printable version of this worksheet.

