Landform Cards

This packet includes a set of landform cards. There are countless ways to use these cards. Some ideas include:

1. Landform Display Project

Students can cut them out and color them in. Tape the cards onto a sheet of poster board using only a small piece of clear tape along the top of each card (so the card flips upwards). Students write a definition for the landform beneath each card.

2. Landform Learning Center

On index cards, list real-life examples of each landform. (For example, you might write Florida on an index card to correspond with peninsula. Or you could write Mount McKinley to correspond with mountain. Perhaps you would use Manhattan to correspond with island.) Students match the real-life examples with the correct landform card.

3. Landform Test

5. Descriptive Writing

Each student in the class is given a different landform card. The student must color the card and then write a descriptive essay about the landform. In their essays, they should describe the physical features of the landform and tell where it can be found. Essays and colored pictures can be mounted on construction paper and displayed.

6. Compare and Contrast

Students are each given two landform cards. They must write a short paragraph to tell how the two landforms are the same. Then they write a second paragraph to tell how they are different. As an alternative to writing paragraphs, you might want to have students complete a Venn Diagram to compare and contrast the two landforms.

7. Make a Landform Bulletin Board

Decorate a classroom bulletin board with landform pictures. Add definitions of the landforms. You may also want to add photographs of each landform from the Internet.
